Discovery Partner

Foreign Language Processing, Review and Production Support

As corporations increasingly face litigation involving international business transactions, the challenge of culling, reviewing and producing digital evidence in foreign languages also continues to grow. And that has meant a time-consuming process of translation, bogging down and complicating the already arduous task of eDiscovery.

Now you can do eDiscovery directly in a variety of foreign languages without translating the documents into English first: With EED's Discovery Partner®, the search itself is entered in the foreign language. This both speeds up the process and lowers your chance of translation errors.

The Discovery Partner hosted document review platform lets litigation support and eDiscovery review teams analyze, organize and review documents and emails in most Western European languages, as well as languages based on multi-byte character sets, including Arabic, Chinese, Japanese and Korean. And our London data processing center complies with EU data privacy requirements.

In today's global economy, litigation can pop up anywhere in the world. Be prepared with Discovery Partner.

Some data sets may contain documents using legacy, non-Unicode character formats. To ensure, the type of character encoding being used, it is recommended that clients provide a data sample to verify EED system compatibility with the encoding format.
